

process, to set things aside, let the people speak, and let that be instructive to the Supreme Court nomination.

Incidentally, I know the Vice President, at the time he made this quote, was the chairman of the Judiciary Committee, the position Senator GRASSLEY currently holds. He was basically saying what Senator GRASSLEY has said and that I fully support. So I think Vice President BIDEN was right the first time. He seems to be stepping back on his words, but I don't think his words can be parsed. They were pretty well-articulated right here on the Senate floor.

Then we come to the minority leader. We now have the minority leader and others coming to the floor talking about what our constitutional duty is, but the minority leader came to this floor—right over there, not very far from where I am now—and he said:

The duties of the Senate are set forth in the U.S. Constitution. Nowhere in that document does it say the Senate has a duty to give presidential appointees a vote.

I agree with Senator REID. And finally, we have one from my good friend from New York, Senator SCHUMER. Senator SCHUMER is a very articulate man. He is a practiced attorney, and there are many aspects of the man I admire. In another instance, in a very passionate speech given—it is on YouTube so you can all watch it—he has taken a very similar position; that circumstances get to a point to where maybe we need to hold nominations until we get the information we need that is instructive to the future nomination or the future vote or consent matter.

I agree with Senator REID's 2005 statement, I agree with Senator BIDEN, Chairman BIDEN, now-Vice President BIDEN's statement of 1992, and I agree with Senator SCHUMER's of 2007.

My colleagues, it is time for us to move on and recognize the position we have taken is a position that is going to stand. We can go to the American people back in our States, States like North Carolina, where we have a primary next week, and I will be traveling all across the State tomorrow and Saturday, back again on Monday. I will explain to them why I have taken the position I have, and when we do, all the games that are being played now, with one poll saying one thing or another poll saying another thing, we can cut through the noise and talk about what we are really trying to do.

What we are trying to do is to give the people an opportunity to voice where they want to take the direction of the Supreme Court, where they want to take the Nation in terms of the Presidency, and where they want to take the Nation in terms of the Congress. I am willing to bet on the people's voice, and I am looking forward to it being instructive to the ultimate decision I make about a Supreme Court nominee.

I love getting letters from folks in my State, so the last thing I leave you with is a quote from a lady named Lois from North Carolina. I think she does a good job of summing up my own feelings. She said:

I really wish the discussions and hoopla could have waited a little longer after Judge Scalia's passing, but we are having the back and forth of what to do. As your constituent, I'm in agreement with the committee position of waiting until after we have a new President. Word out of the White House to the Senate is: Do your job. Well, I, for one, think you are doing your job. It's called checks and balances.

In the coming weeks, I am looking forward to continuing this debate. I want to especially note that Senator GRASSLEY is a wonderful Member of the Senate. He has support and admiration from both sides of the aisle. I appreciate his leadership on this matter. I appreciate Leader McConnell's leadership on this matter. I look forward to getting back to North Carolina and hearing what the people would like for me to consider as we move forward with the nomination process.

I thank the Presiding Officer.

Mr. President, I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CASSIDY). The clerk will call the roll.

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

AIR SERVICES AGREEMENT WITH CUBA

Mr. FLAKE. Mr. President, last month we reached a milestone in the continuing reform of our policy toward Cuba. The United States and Cuba completed a bilateral air service agreement that is key to ensuring the continued travel of Americans to the island. The newly minted air services agreement will, for the first time in 50 years, provide scheduled air service between the United States and Cuba, including 20 daily flights to Havana and 10 daily flights to other Cuban airports.

As someone who believes that all Americans should have a chance to see a living museum of a failed socialistic experiment, I look forward to the day when all Americans can use Web sites they are familiar with to make reservations, even with their frequent flyer miles, to book flights to Havana and elsewhere in Cuba. Clearly, there is interest on our side of the Florida Strait. With easing of regulatory restrictions, authorized travel to Cuba by Americans has increased by more than 50 percent in just one year. Freedom to travel between the two countries will continue to open cultural and economic ties, benefiting the Cuban people and Americans alike.

While I ardently support everyone's right to travel to Cuba, key to the success will be ensuring that the initial flights being awarded by the Department of Transportation provide for the continued and expanded ability of the Cuban American community to travel to the island via regular air service. This should include adequate regular service to accommodate the growing demand from the largest and closest Cuban American population located in Miami-Dade County.

In addition, having traveled to Cuba multiple times over the years, I hope that the Department closely evaluates the complexity of operating there and ensures that those selected to operate these routes are up to the task—those with experience.

A failure-to-launch scenario would represent a critically missed opportunity represented by the potential of successfully scheduled air services between the United States and Cuba. We can't afford to let this opportunity go to waste.

I have long supported efforts to restore the rights of American citizens to travel to Cuba and have introduced legislation to lift the statutory ban on travel, along with my colleague from Vermont, Senator LEAHY. I am pleased to say that our legislation continues to gain bipartisan support.

As the situation changes on the ground with developments like regular air service, direct air service, and scheduled air service, I hope that thousands upon thousands of Americans will visit Cuba and Congress will do the right thing when it comes to changing our outdated law.

I yield back, Mr. President.

I suggest the absence of a quorum.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The clerk will call the roll.

The legislative clerk proceeded to call the roll.

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent that the order for the quorum call be rescinded.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. Without objection, it is so ordered.

REMEMBERING JUSTICE ANTONIN SCALIA

Mr. SESSIONS. Mr. President, the Nation has lost one of the greatest Justices ever to sit on the Supreme Court, Antonin Scalia. My condolences and prayers go out to his wife of 55 years, Maureen, his 9 children, and 36 grandchildren.

My thought is that Justice Scalia's greatness was founded on the power of his ideas. His defense of those founding principles of America at the highest intellectual level is unprecedented, to my knowledge, in the United States. Over his career, he moved the legal world. As a young lawyer out of law school, I remember what the trends were and how Justice Scalia relentlessly, intellectually, aggressively, and soundly drove the message that many of the ideas that are out there today are inconsistent with the rule of law and the American tradition.

The trend was relentlessly toward activism. Judges were praised if they advanced the law—not when they followed the law, or served under the law,
